ALMOST HALF OF THE U.S. LIVES ON EASTERN TIME

Using 1980 census counts and a time zone map, the U.S. Bureau of the Census announced in 1984 that 50.5 percent of the population lived on eastern time, 30.1 percent on central time, 5.0 percent on mountain time, 13.9 percent on Pacific time, 0.2 percent on Alaskan time, and 0.4 percent on Hawaii-Aleutian time.

Computations by World Eagle editors using 1986 Census data indicated that almost half of our population still lived in the Eastern Time Zone. And we project that 1990 census data will reveal that the figure will be at least 48%.

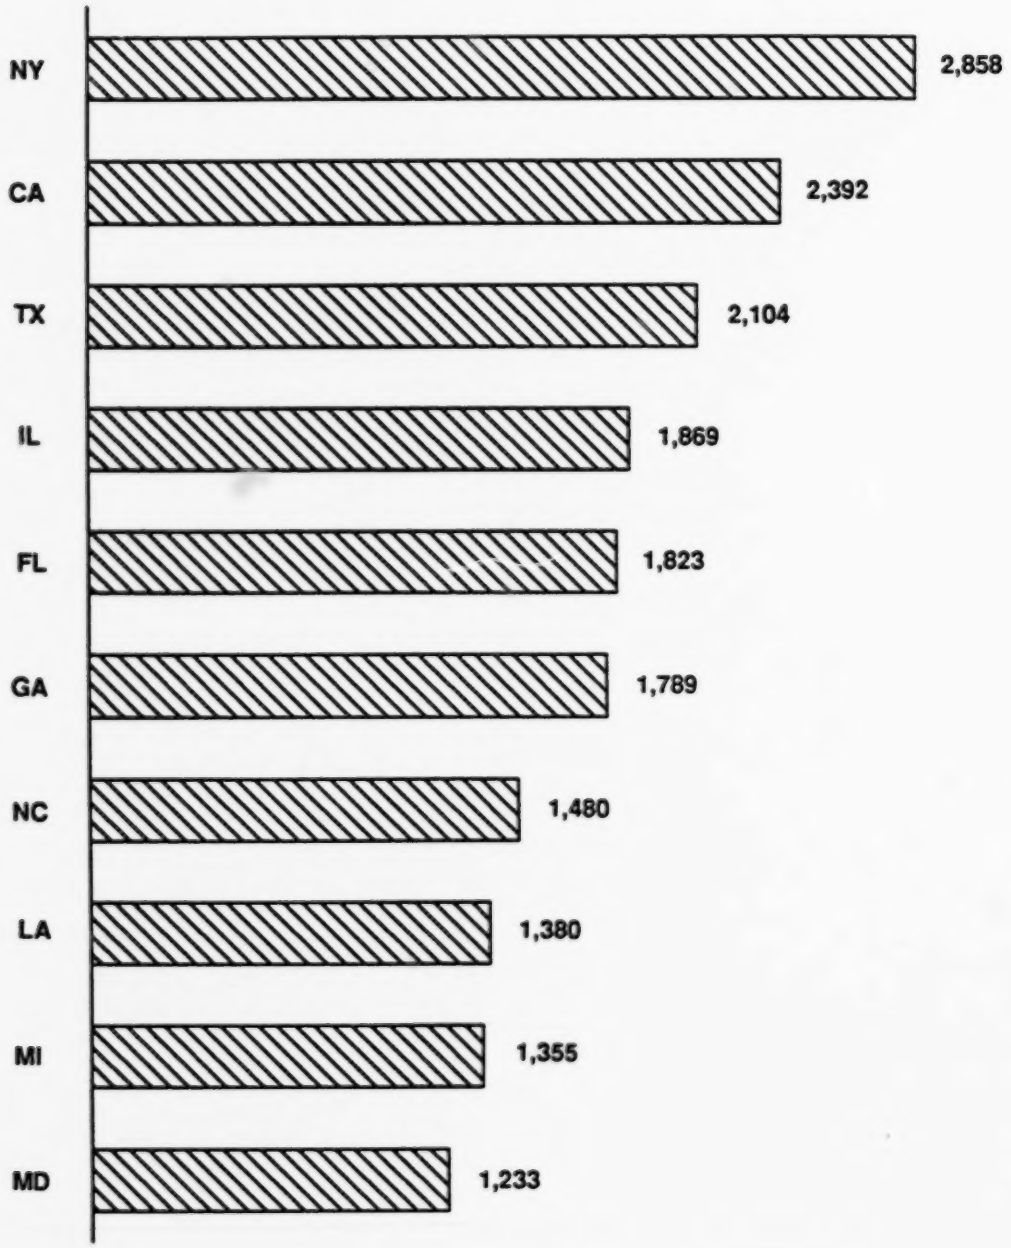
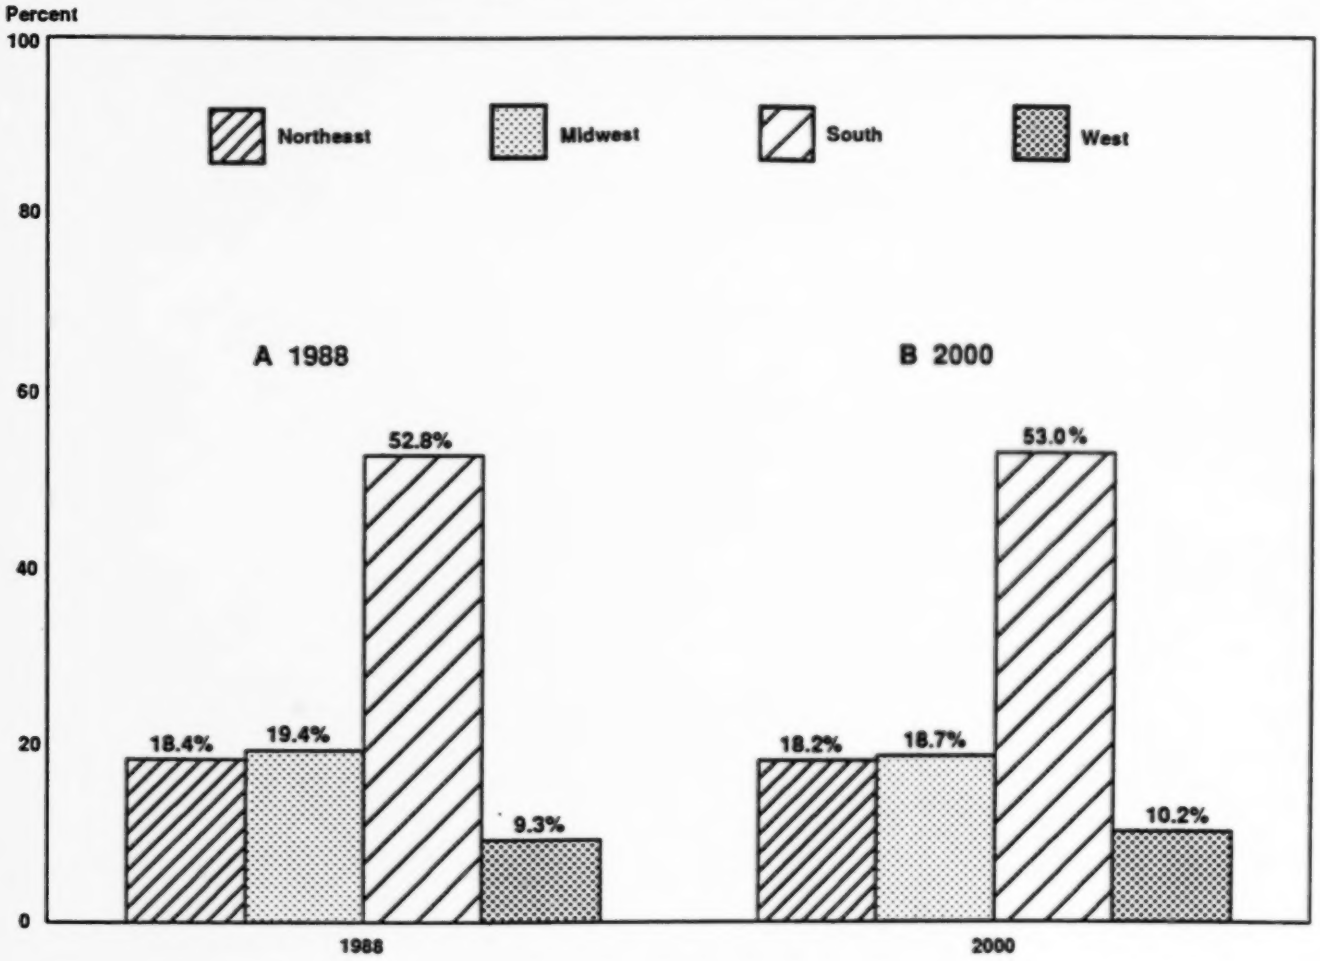
IN 1990 THESE TEN STATES ARE PROJECTED TO HAVE THE LARGEST BLACK POPULATIONS

(numbers in thousands)



Source: U.S. Bureau of the Census. Release CB88-B.03. April 1, 1988.

Based on Recent State Population Projections By the Bureau of the Census, the Regional Distribution of the U.S. Black Population Will Look Like "A" in 1990, and Won't Change Much by 2000.



Half of the Black population growth from 1988 to 2000 will be in five states: CA, FL, GA, TX, and NY.

By the year 2000, more than one-third of the Black population will live in those five states.

From 1988 to 2000, the nation's Black population will grow 16 percent to 35 million. In the same period, the White population will grow 7 percent to 222.1 million.

HIGHLIGHTS From a Recent Bureau of the Census Title

These three pages from an April 1989 title by the U.S. Bureau of the Census have been added here to augment the value of An Advance Look at the 1990 Census which was printed before the Census title was printed.

Highlights

(Values in parenthesis denote 90-percent confidence intervals for estimates based on samples. See appendix B.)

National Population Trends

- The Nation's population reached 245,110,000 (including 514,000 Armed Forces overseas) on January 1, 1988.
- The number of births in 1987 was 3,809,000. The steady increase in this number over the past decade is primarily a result of the rise in the number of women of childbearing age, which can be expected to end as the women of the Baby Boom enter their forties.
- About 26 percent of the Nation's growth during 1987 was due to net immigration.
- Persons 35 to 44 years old are in the fastest growing age group of the 1980's; the group increased 33.8 percent between 1980 and 1987. The 85-and-over group followed with an increase of 28.0 percent.
- The elementary-school-age population (5 to 13), which had been declining since 1970, "bottomed out" in 1985. Since then, the recent rise in births has brought about an increase in this group.
- Average life expectancy at birth in 1987 was 74.9 years—78.3 years for females and 71.5 years for males.

National Population Projections

- Under the middle series projection, the United States population would begin to decline within 50 years. After 1995 it is projected to grow more slowly than ever before.
- During the next 20 years the population aged 65 and older is projected to grow much more slowly than it did from 1950 to 1987. After 2010, the elderly population will begin to increase rapidly.
- Under the middle series projection, the population under age 35 is projected to never again be as numerous as it is now.

State Population Trends

- The South and West continue to dominate the Nation's growth this decade, capturing 89.2 percent of the 16.9 million population increase from 1980 to 1987. Three States, California, Texas, and Florida, accounted for over half (8.8 million) of this growth.
- Population growth was off sharply in several States in the fourth year of the energy-related industry slowdown. Alaska and Louisiana both experienced population losses from 1986 to 1987.
- Females constitute the majority of the population in all States except Alaska, Hawaii, Nevada, North Dakota, and Wyoming.
- As in 1980, the Northeast was the region with the oldest population in 1987: it had a median age of 33.7 and 13.5 percent of its population was 65 years and over.

State Population Projections

- The South and the West would continue to be the fastest growing regions in the United States. Between 1986 and 2000, these two regions would add over 24.6 million persons. In contrast, the Northeast and the Midwest would add only 2.1 million persons to their population.
- During the 1986 to 2000 period, 10 States are projected to grow at least twice as fast as the U.S. rate of growth. Nine of these 10 States are in the South and West; New Hampshire is the exception.
- California would continue to be the most populous State in 2000. Texas would pass New York and move into the second position. Florida will be fourth, and Illinois would pass Pennsylvania to become the fifth most populous State.
- Florida would continue to have the highest median age in 2000. Its projected median age of 41.2 is over 2 years greater than that of Pennsylvania with a projected median age of 38.9. Utah would be the only State to have a median age less than 30 (26.0).

Marital Status and Living Arrangements

- Unmarried-couple households totaled 2,588,000 (+/– 111,000) in 1988, a 63-percent (+/– 11.0) increase since 1980.
- The proportions of persons aged 20 to 24 years who had not yet married rose from 55 percent to 78 (+/– 2.4) percent for men and from 36 percent to 61 (+/– 2.4) percent for women between 1970 and 1988.
- The majority of persons who live alone are women. However, the number of males who live alone is increasing at a faster pace than their female counterparts: a 149 (+/– 15.8) percent increase for men in the 1970–88 period, compared with a 79 (+/– 8.2) percent increase for women.
- In 1988, 54 percent of young adults aged 18 to 24 lived in the home of their parents, up from 48 (+/– 1.4) percent in 1980.

Fertility

- In 1987, there were 3.7 (+/– 0.1) million births, resulting in a fertility rate of 71.0 (+/– 2.4) births per 1,000 women 18 to 44 years old.
- Of all births to Black women in 1987, 55 (+/– 4.4) percent were to unmarried women, compared with 12 (+/– 1.2) percent for White women and 26 (+/– 4.6) percent for Hispanic women.
- Among women who had a child in the year preceding the June 1987 survey, 51 (+/– 1.7) percent were in the labor force in June 1987 as compared with 31 (+/– 1.7) percent in June 1976.
- Women 30 to 34 years old in 1987 expected to have an average of 2.1 (+/– 0.03) children in their lifetime, a number just at the level of replacement fertility.

Labor Force and Occupation

- Annual average civilian employment rose by 2.8 million (+/– 390,000) persons between 1986 and 1987, to 112.4 million (+/– 272,000). The average number of unemployed fell by 812,000 (+/– 146,000) to 7.4 million (+/– 100,000); the unemployment rate dropped to its lowest level since 1979, 6.2 (+/– 0.1) percent, nearly a percentage point lower than the average rate of 1986.
- The proportion of the working-age (16 years old and over) population who held jobs averaged 61.5 (+/– 0.2) percent in 1987, the highest figure in history.
- Reflecting the strong growth in employment in 1987, the number of families with employed members increased by 900,000 (+/– 298,000), to 51.9 million (+/– 210,000), or 81 (+/– 0.2) percent of all families.

Money Income

- In 1987, median family income was $30,850 (+/– 232), 1.0 (+/– 0.9) percent higher than in 1986 after adjusting for inflation.
- Median income of families with a female householder, no husband present, increased 3.4 (+/– 0.3) percent in real terms from 1986. This represents the second significant annual increase since 1979.
- Real per capita income in 1987, $12,290 (+/– 102), was at an all time high, increasing 1.6 (+/– 1.0) percent over its 1986 level.

Poverty

- The number of persons below the official Government poverty level was 32.5 (+/– 0.8) million in 1987, not significantly different from the 32.4 (+/– 0.9) million in 1986.
- The poverty rate was 13.5 (+/– 0.3) percent in 1987, not significantly different from the 13.6 (+/– 0.3) percent in 1986.
- Both the number of poor and the poverty rate have declined since 1983, the recent peak in these figures, but both remain above their 1978 levels, the recent low point in these figures.

Blacks in the United States

- In 1988, the Black population was 29.3 million. It increased by 12.7 percent or about 3.3 million persons between 1980 and 1988.
- In 1988, 80 (+/– 1.1) percent of Blacks in the 25 to 34 age group had completed high school compared with 75 (+/– 1.2) percent in 1980.
- In 1987, the average annual unemployment rate for Blacks 16 years and over was 13.0 (+/– 0.4) percent.
- The median income of Black families in 1987 was $18,100 (+/– 657) and their poverty rate was 33.1 (+/– 1.2) percent.

Hispanics in the United States

- In 1988, the Hispanic population was 19.4 million. It increased by 34 percent, or about 4.8 million persons, between 1980 and 1988.
- Five Southwestern States (Arizona, California, Colorado, New Mexico and Texas) were home to 63 (+/– 1.7) percent of the Nation's Hispanics in 1988.
- In 1988, 10 (+/– 0.8) percent of Hispanics, 25 years old and over, had completed 4 or more years of college as compared with 5 (+/– 0.3) percent in 1970.
- In 1987, the median family income of Hispanic families was $20,310 (+/– 717) and their poverty rate based on 1987 income was 25.8 (+/– 1.5) percent.

The Elderly Population

- The population aged 65 and over increased from 23.9 million in 1980 to 29.8 million in 1987, and from 10.8 percent to 12.2 percent of the total population.
- Persons aged 85 and over, the fastest growing segment of the elderly population, increased 28 percent from 1980 to 1987.
- In 1987, women were 56 percent of the "young old" (aged 65 to 74), but they were 72 percent of the "oldest old" (aged 85 and over).
- In 1987, the median income of households with a householder aged 65 and over ($14,330 +/– 251) was only half that of households with a householder aged 55 to 64 ($27,540 +/– 631).

Metropolitan and Nonmetropolitan Area Populations

- The population of the Nation's metropolitan areas as a group grew 1.12 percent per year between 1980 and 1987, about the same as during the 1970's (1.0 percent per year). Metropolitan areas now account for 77 percent of the Nation's population.
- Population growth in nonmetropolitan territory between 1980 and 1987 was markedly slower than during the 1970's (0.58 versus 1.34 percent per year).
- Since 1980, metropolitan areas of all sizes grew at similar rates, ranging from 0.97 percent per year in areas with over 5 million residents to 1.23 percent per year for areas with 1 to 5 million population. During the 1970's, smaller metropolitan areas grew faster than larger ones, ranging from 0.33 percent per year for areas with over 5 million residents to 1.6 percent per year for areas with fewer than 250,000 residents.
- Nonmetropolitan growth during the 1980–87 period was fastest in counties with the highest rate of commuting to metropolitan areas (1.21 percent per year) and lowest in counties that are most remote from metropolitan areas (0.42 percent per year).

City and Suburban Populations

- Population growth of metropolitan central cities as a group was faster during 1980–86 (4.7 percent) than in the 1970's, when growth for the entire decade was only 0.9 percent.
- Northern central cities generally continued to lose population, particularly those of the Midwest, which experienced a decline of 1.4 percent during the 1980–86 period.
- The population of metropolitan suburbs grew in all regions for 1980–86: 15.4 percent in the South, 14.5 percent in the West, 3.2 percent in the Midwest, and 2.8 percent in the Northeast.
- Since 1980, two new cities, San Diego and Dallas, have been added to the existing list of cities with at least 1 million residents (New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Houston, Philadelphia, and Detroit.)

The Farm Population

- About 4,986,000 (+/– 191,000) persons lived on farms in rural areas of the United States in 1987. This represents 1 out of every 49 persons, or 2.0 (+/– 0.1) percent of the total population.
- From 1981 to 1987, the farm population declined at an average rate of 2.5 (+/– 0.8) percent per year.
- The median income of farm families in 1986 was $23,330 (+/– 1,683), considerably lower than the nonfarm median family income of $29,630 (+/– 256).

Geographical Mobility

- The annual rate of moving between March 1986 and March 1987 was the same as during the previous 1-year period—18.6 (+/– 0.33) percent. Most people who moved made local moves—11.6 (+/– 0.27) percent of the total population of the United States moved within the same county.
- The highest moving rates were found for persons in their twenties—34.7 (+/– 1.42) percent for those 20 to 24 years of age in 1987 and 31.8 (+/– 1.31) percent for those 25 to 29 years old.
- Blacks had higher overall rates of moving than Whites—19.6 (+/– 0.98) percent for Blacks versus 17.8 (+/– 0.35) percent for Whites.
- Hispanics had a higher overall rate of moving (22.6 +/– 1.27 percent) than either non-Hispanic Whites or Blacks.
- The Northeast had a net loss of migrants—334,000 (+/– 130,000)—to the other regions. The South had a net gain of 279,000 (+/– 193,000) persons, while the West had a net gain of 166,000 (+/– 152,000) people due to migration. The Midwest had nearly equal numbers of inmigrants and outmigrants for the second straight year.

School Enrollment

- In the 1980's elementary school enrollment reached the end of its long-term decline; it was 27 (+/– 0.2) million in 1986, 20 (+/– 0.9) percent below the 1970 peak.
- Preprimary enrollment grew to 6.5 (+/– 0.2) million in 1986, up 25 (+/– 4.7) percent since 1981, because of increased population at preprimary ages.
- College enrollment, 12.4 (+/– 0.2) million in 1986, has remained relatively stable for 5 years, in spite of a decline in the population of traditional college age.

Educational Attainment

- In 1988 a record 76 (+/– 0.3) percent of persons 25 years old and over had completed 4 years of high school or more.
- In 1988 a record 20 (+/– 0.3) percent of persons 25 years old and over had completed 4 or more years of college.
- Among young adults (25 to 29 years old) in 1988, 87 (+/– 0.6) percent of Whites, 81 (+/– 2.0) percent of Blacks and 62 (+/– 2.8) percent of Hispanics were high school graduates.

Households and Families

- There were 91.1 million households in the United States in March 1988, up 1.6 million (+/– 527,000) as compared with the total for the previous year.
- The number of households increased by 13 (+/– 0.9) percent from 1980 to 1988, a significantly lower rate of increase than for the corresponding period in the 1970's.
- There were 3.17 persons per family in 1988, 0.41 (+/– .03) fewer than in 1970.
